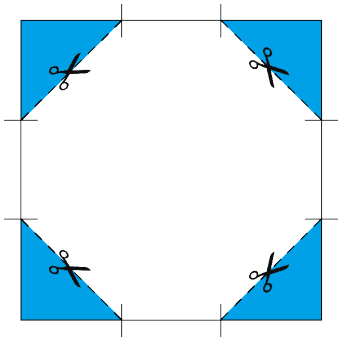
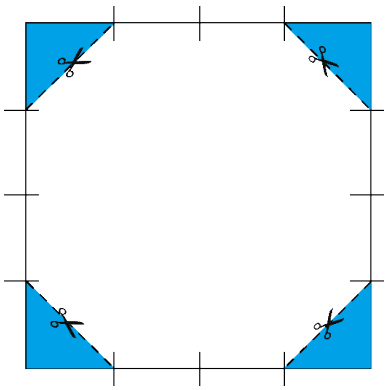
17. Trimmed squares (2/3/3)



The sides of a square are divided into three sections of equal length.
The corners are cut away (see figure).

- What proportion of the square's area is cut away?



The sides of a square are divided into four sections of equal length.
The corners are cut away (see figure).

- What proportion of the square's area is now cut away?

- Investigate what proportion of a square's area is cut away if the sides are divided into five, six or more sections of equal length.
- Use your investigation and write a formula which expresses what proportion of a square's area is cut away if its sides are divided into n sections of equal length.
- Show that your formula works for all numbers of divisions of a square's sides.

When assessing your work, the teacher will consider

- what mathematical knowledge you have shown and how well you have carried out the task
- how well you have explained your work and given reasons for your conclusions
- how well you have presented your work.
